

EduChampions

Fostering edupreneurship to embrace learners' diversity

1st Newsletter - March 2023

Promoting inclusive and equitable learning practices is more urgent than ever. It is recognised as fundamental because of the life-changing potential of education, namely for those in more disadvantaged circumstances, have access to fewer opportunities, and fall behind in accessing education and formal learning opportunities. This is not only about those who are at a higher risk of social and economic exclusion (a group that dramatically increased in the face of the pandemic emergency and complex geopolitical, cultural, social, and economic circumstances), but also about the ones who face concrete challenges in the learning process, due to personal characteristics that make it harder to adapt to the learning process.

About EduChampions

The main goal of the EduChampions project is to nourish the edupreneur mindset among educators so they act as champions for change in prompting for innovation and flexibility in education, addressing learners' diversity through a combination of learner-centred pedagogies with purposefully used educational technologies.
