

BoysLingo project's main purpose was to bring boys closer to the language lesson and improve their skills by providing meaningful language activities using mobile technologies, especially gamified m-learning tools. In order to reach this goal and to support educators of primary and secondary education in engaging boys, but also girls, in language learning activities, the project has successfully produced the following outcomes:

- The BoysLingo Handbook & the Collection of Best Practices were developed and evaluated by teachers in all partner countries;
- The gamified mobile learning App, with 40 learning scenarios, was developed and widely piloted in different primary and secondary schools in Poland, Greece, Cyprus, Ireland and Italy;
- A teachers' training course on how to integrate mobile learning, and promote language learning among students (especially boys) was designed, shared on the official e-learning platform and piloted by a great number of teachers.

Results

Moreover, during the 2-year project, the whole partnership has achieved the following results:

- More than 1.000 students and 120 teachers were efficiently engaged in the BoysLingo implementation activities
- 5 BoysLingo local events took place in all partner countries, attended by the expected number of stakeholders in the field of language learning and education
- More than 10.000 stakeholders were successfully reached to raise their awareness about Language learning and gender challenges.

The BoysLing project impact it's obvious

It has exceeded the expectations in terms of reaching and engaging the specific target groups and surely its contribution to a more inclusive education in the field of language learning will keep inspire future teacher generations and, most importantly, help students discover their love for language learning and support them in their growth.

If you want to be part of this change in the language learning approach,

go check our website

and explore the resources we have designed for innovative teachers like you!

boyslingo.eu